YOUNG ALUMNI CONTRIBUTION AWARD

AUGUST 2008

Brazil, 2008.

One can find it difficult to call Yoselin Santiago AIESEC alumnus, since the amount of support and daily commitment she gives to AIESEC could easily overpass the one you would see in an active member.

Yoselin entered AIESEC in 1991 and managed to achieve outstanding results in any of the roles she assumed in the organization. She was leading different functional areas, managing a local committee, being the president of AIESEC in the Dominican Republic and contributing to the huge success of an international project in Hungary. Thanks to her leadership a new local committee from the Dominican Republic was introduced to the AIESEC network.

Even though she is already an “Yoselin Santiago represents for us and the Dominican Republic society a true role model, an incredible example of an AIESEC Leader that continues to have a direct impact both in AIESEC and in the society. We couldn't be more proud and thankful for all her power, motivation, experience and support offered in order to help rebuilding AIESEC in Dominican Republic!”

alumnus and actually has been chairperson of the board of advisors of AIESEC in the Dominican Republic for the last 5 years, Yoselin is still involved almost on a daily basis in the latest projects and activities. The “mom”, as she is being often referred to, has played a decisive role in securing financial support for AIESEC in the country, in one of the cases through the company she herself co-owns. Yoselin is constantly looking for opportunities AIESEC can take benefit of, an example of which was a recent high-profiled conference AIESEC got strongly engaged with thanks to her pro-activeness.

Apart from her tremendous engagement with AIESEC, Yoselin manages to run a highly successful career being responsible for the area of international relations of Santo Domingo city and is managing a prosperous co-owned business of hers. She is actively involved in sustainability, as well, being a volunteer of “ATABEY”, a Dominican foundation that promotes environmental protection.
